GILLESPIE GRAIN CO. LTD.

The World of Wheat.

By H. G. L. Strange, Director Research Department,
Searle Grain Co. Ltd.

"What with germination, generation, grade, registration and certification, Canadian seed requirements are very complicated." So said an American friend to me.

"I admit that at first glance they do seem complicated," I replied, "but the sale of Canadian grains, particularly wheat, on world's markets, depends upon quality, and these seed classifications promote quality."

"However, you have forgotten Licensing," I went on. "The most important requirement of all."

The Canada Seed Act forbids anyone to sell seeds of any variety unless that particular variety has been licensed by the Dominion Government.

Only varieties suitable for use in Canada are licensed; so undesirable kinds, and those only "just as good" are kept out of our country.

In addition, all seeds of any classification offered for sale must have a Seed Control Certificate. This guarantees that the germination is satisfactory, and that the content of weed seeds or of seeds of other kinds of grain, is not more than is permitted by law.

S.C. Rally on Saturday.

The fact that it was the 13th of the month did not affect the attendance at the Social Credit mass meeting here on Saturday evening. The crowd had gathered early and by the time the meeting was called to order there was standing room only.

Mrs C. Wood, president of the Constitutional Association, presided. The Sun was led to believe that Hon Solon Low Provincial Treasurer, and Hon W. A. Fallow Minister of Public Works would be present, but these were said to be unavoidably absent.

Those on the platform with the President, were our member Mr. Hayes; W. H. Ray of Marwayne; and assemblyman Berg, M.L.A. for Alexandria.

Mr. Hayes was the first speaker up. He was pleased to see such a large turnout, and made a statement concerning the road work. He stated every contract let for road work contained a clause making it obligatory for a contractor to hire sixty percent of his help locally and stated this was done on road recently completed on highway sixteen, when gravel work was done.

He mentioned that he had broadcast an address over station CJCA on the evening of Thursday, Nov. 4th, under the auspices of the Social Credit Board, and wondered how many of those present had heard him on that occasion. In case any had not heard him, then he undertook to re-read this address, which he did. In mentioning the Jasper Highway, he stated the work on this road would be recommended early in the Spring, the grading being done all the way up to Jasper Park, with a "four way road." He took to task those of the Opposition who had been making scurrilous statements regarding the work being done by the Provincial Government. He carried news of the good work being done in this Constituency, a* the afternoon, and drew the attention of those residents in the western and southwestern portions of the Stony Plain Constituency that he would shortly start a tour of that portion of the Riding, and hold meetings at the various places en route.

Mr. Berg gave a blackboard with him and described by diagrams, operation which take place at the present time before the article produced reaches the ultimate consumer. He checked over

Mr. Ray was announced as one of the original organizers when Social Credit campaigning was started early in 1935. Mr. Ray had been engaged in a number of occupations before joining up with Social Credit forces, including that of being a cleric in a brokers office.

Mr. Ray had his blackboard with him and described by diagrams, operation which take place at the present time before the article produced reaches the ultimate consumer. He checked over one of the statements made on behalf of Technocracy, including those made by Scott Howard, its chief exponent.

He urged Social Creditors to stick together, as it was only by doing so they would achieve their ends--more purchasing power and a lower living cost.

Shortly after Mr. Ray commenced his address Mr. McKenney went around with the hat, collecting to defray the expenses of hiring the hall. About $20 is said to have been collected.

The Big Interests

One is sometimes tempted to wonder why those so-called old fashioned virtues of virtue, with prudence and industry, are not more generally observed at nowadays and elsewhere. They are probably not much-needed, if not actually to be abhorred, at least something to be ashamed of.

Despite the fact that history, and particularly comparatively recent history, abounds with the names of men who from little or nothing have built up great industries, have risen to wealth or power, by the application of these virtues, plus ability and foresight, it would appear as if they were to be condemned, and the capitalistic "system" which in combination with a democratic form of government gives the poor boy an opportunity to rise from the ranks ought to be abhorred, at least something to be ashamed of.

Without holding any particular brief for capitalism and the capitalists one cannot help but deplore a good deal of the loose talk which is indulged in, all too frequently, in which the capitalist is held up as the foe of the common man and such terms as "the big interests" and the "fifty big shots" are used to express contempt; if not hatred, for those who have got along in a successful way by their own efforts; and in which such slogans (not born, I might say, in the United States and Canada) "the rich are becoming richer and the poor are becoming poorer," pass for currency and are accepted by some as gospel.

It would almost seem as if some of the facts are forgotten; that, for instance, without capital labor could achieve nothing of consequence; that the co-operative efforts of capital and labor have made the luxuries of yesterday the necessities of to-day and that inevitably the luxuries of to-day will become the necessities of tomorrow and that nowhere in the world have these achievements approached the zenith as they have in the countries of this continent where free rein has been given to individual effort under a democratic, capital-labor system to an extent as yet unequalled elsewhere in actual practice.

Clipping a number of illustrations of men who have risen to important posts in Industry J. Lambert Payne writing in the Ottawa Journal refers, among many others, to Walter P. Chrysler, whose story is an extraordinary tribute to these old fashioned virtues, and the late John R. Booth, of Ottawa, and goes on to say:

"Instead of wealth being in the hands of a predatory few, as is often alleged, its diffusion is the salient fact of our time. As a matter of totality in Canada, it is literally in the hands of millions. . . . There is not a trace of cohesion or co-operation among the capitalists (referring to allegations that the big interests combine to thwart the will of the people). Chrysler and Booth had to meet strenuous rivalry at every step in their progress; and for that reason, so patent to the judicial mind, we use a misleading word when speak of capitalism as 'a system'."

"Moreover," as Mr. Payne points out, "the exaction of capitalism in certain quarters ignores the fact that it has existed since organized society began and," he concludes, "will likely persist. Commerce is impossible without it."

And not in industry alone has capital, so far in the history of the world, been one of the two essential factors to civilized progress, but it is also an important element in agriculture. Every farmer is himself an illustration of the co-operative effect of capital and labor, for every farmer is both a capitalist and a laborer. Every man who purchases a half section of land and a line of implements and power to operate them becomes a capitalist and when, in addition to that, he hires a man to operate some of his machinery he places himself in the category of a capitalist employer of labor.

And every farmer who has employed one or more men knows that there must be co-operation and accord between himself and his hired man if both, or either, are to attain maximum results.

It has often been said that there is nothing new under the sun and that is true of efforts to decry capitalists and capitalism. The same cry has been raised during every depression which has struck industry on the North American continent as was aptly pointed out, with examples, in a recent issue of a popular magazine.

If past history is to be regarded as a guide, it is probably fairly safe to assume that with the return of prosperity, the halting of what is regarded as "the big interests" will appear as people become more occupied with efforts to advance their own interests provided that while they are doing so they are unmindful of the welfare of the public.

In the agricultural west which has been so hard hit recently and in those sections which are still facing the dire effects of prolonged drought, the disappearance of ire at capital may be retarded, but the time will in all probability come when the rank and file will look back in retrospect and wonder what it was all about.

The British Railways Press Office announces that over 7,000 passenger trains arrive and leave London's seven main line terminals every day, an average of five trains a minute. There are in Britain nearly twice as many passenger trains as there are for every mile of track as there are in France, and more than five times as many as there are in the United States.—Port Arthur "News-Chronicle."

Leaves Post

Aide-de-Camp To Lord Tweedsmuir To Rejoin Royal Navy

Lieutenant S. G. Rivers-Smith has relinquished his post as aide-de-camp to the governor-general and left for England to rejoin the royal navy, which he left for service with Lord Tweedsmuir.

Rivers-Smith chose to leave his post at Ottawa one year before his term expired, fearing he would lose touch with developments in the navy if he remained longer.

Last summer Rivers-Smith accompanied the governor-general on the complete itinerary of his tour through the northwest and British Columbia. He was the only member of Lord Tweedsmuir's staff who covered the whole journey of more than 10,000 miles.

His successor is Lieut. R. Scott, also of the royal navy.

Novelist Has Recipes Used By Famous Italian Pioneers

There is a bank in London which in its vaults secret recipes of all the deadly poisons known to the Borgias, the famous Italian poisoners.

They have been placed there for safety by a woman who is afraid that someone into the hands of the Borgias, the famous Italian poisoners.

She is Miss Kitty Shannon, novelist daughter of the late Sir James Shannon, the famous R.A.

When she decided to write her sixth novel—about the Borgias—Miss Shannon went to Italy to hunt up the poisons they used for inclusion in the book.

Miss Shannon told the Daily Sketch: "I advertised in a Rome paper for somebody who knew the recipes.

"The first thing that happened was that I got a visit from a police officer who told me I would be responsible if I gave him any information.

"Then I had a visit from a chemist; in fact, one of his ancestors had prepared poisons for the Borgias. He gave me the recipes for ten different poisons.

"I was appalled by the simplicity of some of them. One, which I dare not reveal, is so simple that it can be prepared from boiling down three different weeds that you tread underfoot any time you go for a country walk. One drop of it will kill you in about fifteen minutes.

"And now there is a little difficulty over my book. The poison recipes were to have been included in it, but the publishers are also nervous.

"So some of the Borgia poisons will have to remain secret. They will stay at the bank until I destroy them. They are too big a responsibility."

The Word Hydro

Means Something Apart From Electric Power Itself

In Canada, the word "Hydro" refers to one of the country's most vital assets, hydro-electric power. It's a different story in Britain, where the people always think of a hotel when "Hydro" is mentioned. The term is short for "Hydropathic". English and Scottish Hydros are usually temperature hotels where water cures are the thing.

Canadians learned something about them during the visit of 22 Scottish hotelkeepers and their wives. The party, organized under the joint auspices of the Scottish Travel Association and the Hotels and Restaurants' Association of Great Britain, spent a day at Ottawa, seeing the Parliament Buildings and other aspects of the capital and making a thorough inspection tour of The Chateau Laurier, where they were entertained to dinner by the Canadian National Railways hotel department.

Two Hydros were represented in the group—one at Peebles and the other at Skibo Castle Hotel—and the latter, which is somewhat particularly romantic to Canadian ears were the Updale Arms of Machrihanish, the Duke of Gordon Hotel of Kingussie, and the Baile Nic Jarvie of Aberfoyle. The last is named after a popular Walter Scott character, the magistrate in "Rob Roy"—C.N.R. News Bulletin.

Bar Canadian Nurses

American Officials To Take Steps To Prevent Their Entry To U.S.

James Houghteling, United States immigration commissioner, in a letter made public by the National Nurses' Association, said immediate steps would be taken to prevent the further entry of job-seeking Canadian nurses into the United States.

The association recently protested to Labor Secretary Perkins against what it called the "wholesale importation" of Canadian nurses to hospitals in New York state and elsewhere "to the detriment of qualified graduate American nurses in New York and the entire United States."

The protest was referred to Houghteling, who replied:

"I have been examining the records and am inclined to agree with you that the courtesy we have been extending to this class of Canadian visitors has been overdone. . . ."

"I am therefore issuing instructions to our officers on the Canadian border that while Canadian nurses made be admitted on visitors' permits for ordinary visits on cases which require temporary entry into the United States, visitors' permits shall no longer be issued for the purpose of enabling Canadian nurses to come into this country to take jobs here."

Status of Christ

Excited On Barricade By Royal Guards On Bering Sea

A life-size statue of Christ faces Russia across the Bering sea from the highest point of land on lonely Christ the King Island, erected by the island's population of 190 Roman Catholic Eskimos as a symbol of Christ's love.

Details of the statue and its dedication were revealed in New York by Miss Felicity Buranelli, niece of the late Mrs. Samuel J. Kitson, widow of the famous British sculptor.

Miss Kitson, before she died seven months ago, completed the statue her husband started.

Father Bernard R. Hubbard, priest, scientist and explorer is responsible for the erection of the statue on the barren rocky eminence rising 900 feet above sea level, 85 miles from Nome.

After Suffering Acute Pain For Years

Rheumatism first attacked this old lady in 1931, and gradually spread from her arms to other parts of her body. Then she started to take Arnica Salts, and now she sends the following letter in her own handwriting:

"I have suffered from rheumatism since 1931. At first I felt pain in both arms. I could not sleep for pain. It grew worse, and gradually crept down to the tips of my fingers. Next it reached my knees and ankles, which made me quite helpless for a long period. A friend recommended me to take Kruschen Salts. I find they do more good than any other medicine I have tried or ointment I ever used. This is my own writing, though I am in my 84th year (Mrs.)

"I am again troubled with stiffness of rheumatism and am often caused by deposits of needle-pointed uric acid crystals in the muscles and joints. Kruschen Salts are the best remedy. I take them daily to keep me healthy, regular action, and assist them to get rid of the excess uric acid which is frequently the cause of your suffering."

Woman Worried Over Breakfast She Gave Her Husband

Stanley Ditzel, switchboard operator in the Town Hall at West Orange, New Jersey, received a call from an excited woman who asked for the Board of Health.

"The life is busy, madam," said Mr. Ditzel.

"Oh, you help me, please," she pleaded. "After my husband left for work this morning, I discovered I made a terrible mistake. I gave our dog chopped meat, which I was going to make into patties for my husband's breakfast. I added my husband's favorite made of canned dog food. What shall I do?"

A dog owner himself, Mr. Ditzel assured her no harm would result. Relieved, she explained that neither her husband nor the dog seemed to be any the worse for the error, although she had been worried. She did not give her name.

Cree Indian From West Makes Trip From Winnipeg To Ottawa In A Rowboat

Eloquently shrugging his bronzed and muscular shoulders, a full-blooded Cree Indian chief and medicine man derided the Hollywood conception of his people as entirely exaggerated, and debunked the cowboy as an utterly unromantic creature who carried dreams to protect himself from coyotes and stampeding cattle.

Chief O-Ke-Mow My-Gun, known as Lone Wolf, stopped over in Chat-ham on his way home from Ottawa after a single-handed trip from Winnipeg in a 16-foot rowboat. "The Roving Jane," he rowed 1,750 miles, and the trip lasted from April 15 to October 9.

Service with the 46th South Saskatchewan Battalion as Private George Edward O'Neilson cost Chief Lone Wolf many years of suffering from chronic bronchial asthma as the result of a gas attack, and he has sought to regain his health by living a strenuous life out-of-doors.

Rowing every inch of the way from Winnipeg to Ottawa, striped to the waist, completed his cure, and Chief Lone Wolf, is again a magnificent figure of a man, despite his 57 years. Three years ago he rowed 3,600 miles on a similar trip from Winnipeg as far as the Ottawa River, and then back by way of the French River and Georgian Bay.

His route this time, as he continued building him a new set of lungs, was from Winnipeg along the Red River, the Lake of the Woods and the Rainy River. He entered Lake Superior, rowed thence to the north channel of Lake Huron between the Manitoulin Islands and the mainland, then along the north shore of Georgian Bay to Midland, and thence down the Trent Canal to Ottawa.

Averaging better than 10 miles a day in "The Roving Jane," Chief Lone Wolf ate, drank, slept and was merry in his faithful craft, which was in reality an old yacht hull with the engine removed. With him he had a spring bed, which he slept upon low in the boat, an ample larder, cooking utensils, fishing tackle and personal effects.

Though most of his travelling was done in the day time, Chief Lone Wolf took advantage of moonlight nights to wake up for time lost during the day by stormy weather. He was close to nasty weather in the northern lakes that slowed his progress, but he experienced no storms personally.

The Cree chief and medicine man is far from being a savage—he is a cultured, polished gentleman with only pity and regret for the white man's distorted picture of his people. He is the son of Chief Gray Eagle, who surrendered to General Middleton along with the famous Chief Poundmaker when Lone Wolf was five years of age. Lone Wolf was born in 1880, on the present site of Calgary.

Chief Lone Wolf's early schooling was from Donald MacLaren, Lord Strathcona, and his Stratford second wife was a full blooded Cree Indian woman, the chief recalled.

Lone Wolf spent seven years in Bristol, Eng., three in Paris and a year in Germany, before returning to Canada to lead the explorer's life he loves and has always tried to live.

"The motion picture conception of the Canadian Indian is a complete exaggeration," Chief Lone Wolf said. "I don't see why parents—and yes, ministers of the gospel—allow children to go to see pictures showing Indians using tomahawks and scalping."

The cowboy of the past was far from a romantic figure, and a man would be lucky for better costume, Chief Lone Wolf said. It is true he carried guns, but only to protect himself from coyotes, wild bulls, stampeding cattle, and on rare occasions, men, the chief went on.

"The Crees are thoroughly Canadian in origin, as they settled in Western Canada 1,417 years before the birth of Christ," Chief Lone Wolf explained.

"We are the true Asiatic people, I believe," he said. "We are really often mistaken for white men. There were complete blonds and red-heads.

among the Crees before the white men came."

The Indian is less affected by receiving treaty money than the white man is by unemployment relief, in Chief Lone Wolf's opinion.

"Some have become lazy," he admitted, "but that has been the same with the white man on relief."

Relief recipients who do not want to work are not to be found in Chief Lone Wolf's eyes, and he pointed out that relief expenditures must come out of the Indian's pocket too.

While some white men refuse to go off relief to work, the Indian will go out in the woods with his gun, fish nets and traps, and at least bring back wood for his women to weave into baskets, Chief Lone Wolf said.

"The man who says that the Indian is lazy because of the treaty money he receives is a prevaricator," Chief Lone Wolf asserted.

The Crees resemble the Chippewas, as far as language is concerned. Words are often alike in both tribes, the chief said. His people intermarry with other Indian tribes, though a number have done so with Scotch and French settlers, he said.

The Cree was a truly peaceful Indian Two—Cree Indian . . .

dian until the Blackfeet from the south invaded their lands and spread assassination through his people, at the time of the two buffalo runs before the last of the great herds vanished from the plains, Chief Lone Wolf said.

"I'd like to give your college and school people the story of our people," he said, with flashing eyes. "There is no truth in to-day's conception of the Indian, as neap had Indian" who goes in for scalping."

He told of rebuking a mother who used him to frighten her children into good behavior by threatening to have Chief Lone Wolf scalp them, telling her that Indians will not hurt children and that the suggestion was painful to him.

"My parents never told me to fear a Chinaman," Chief Lone Wolf said, comparing Indian tolerance to that of the white man.

The First Horseless Carriage

Description Which Was Contained In Prospectus Is Interesting

Time marches on. This year marks the 40th anniversary of the forming of the first automobile company, the stockholders of which on August 1, 1897, authorized their president to "build one horseless carriage in as nearly perfect a manner as possible."

This car was completed within the year and performed satisfactorily on the road. It was, however, branded as impractical by the public. This horseless carriage was described in the prospectus as follows:

"Underneath the body and in every way independent of it is a 5-h.p. gasoline motor, which in operation makes scarcely any vibration. The vehicle is steered with the left hand. The lever at the right of the buggy, when thrown forward, throws in the back gear; when turned in the opposite direction a fourth of a turn it throws in a four-mile speed, which is used for rough roads and hill climbing. If greater speed is desired another quarter turn gives eight miles an hour, still another is 12 miles an hour, and if still greater speed is desired the speed is increased at the governor of the motor and as high as 18 miles can be obtained."

The machinery is very simple, not even a counter-shaft used, and is made of such light material of overall construction; it is practically noiseless and impossible to explode, as the fuel supply is below the engine.—National Review.

Viceroy Is Proper Title

Whilst it is difficult, perhaps, to see why there is any "urgent need" for a change in the title, it is certainly true that His Excellency is here as the personal representative of the King—the embodiment of the Monarchy in Canada. Though styled Governor-General, he is, nevertheless,

Viceroy of Canada.

Orderly Market Control

Britain Has Been In Consultation With Dominions on Question

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons that there had been consultations between the government and the Dominions with a view to orderly control of the food market.

The statement came as the chancellor answered a charge made by Hugh Dalton, Labor, earlier in the debate that the government turned down a trade proposal by New Zealand.

Dalton said New Zealand last spring offered to send Great Britain an unlimited quantity of dairy products, proposing to devote the British funds received from these products, after deducting shipping charges, to purchase of British manufactured goods.

The chancellor of the exchequer said the plan would be difficult to operate because it involved the car-making of exchange.

The Dominions as a whole had an interest in these matters "and there is no statutory, quantitative regulation of principal foodstuffs from the Dominions," he said. "There have been consultations between ourselves and the Dominions with a view to orderly control of the market and for the purpose of maintaining the maximum possible supplies to the consumer, consistent with a reasonable remuneration for the producer."

Value Of Cheese

Encouraging Conditions To Consume More Of This Canadian Product

"It has always seemed remarkably strange to me that notwithstanding the fact that it is generally conceded that Canada makes the best Cheddar cheese in the world, yet Canadians eat less cheese than the people of any other country," said Hon. J. G. Gardner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, when speaking on behalf of National Cheese Week.

The per capita consumption of cheese in Canada is only 3% pounds compared with 9½ pounds in Great Britain, where practically all Canadian cheese that is exported finds a ready market.

"National Cheese Week is promoted by the National Dairy Council of Canada for the purpose of encouraging Canadians to become more familiar with cheese as a product not notably high in food value, and so low in price as to be within the reach of the most modest purse. We are so convinced that cheese can properly form a much greater place in the diet of the West," continued Mr. Gardner, "that we are sending 2,000,000 pounds to the area suffering from drought, to be distributed with the double purpose of providing those presently in need and at the same time encouraging greater consumption of cheese in times when the people of the area can purchase."

Keeping Rainfall Records

The Advantages Of A Rain Gauge On Every Farm

Precipitation is the limiting factor in crop production in the drier areas of southern Alberta, southern Saskatchewan and southwestern Manitoba. It is expedient, therefore, that every farmer in these areas know as much as possible of the actual moisture which falls in the form of rain so that he may be able to farm most effectively.

Rainfall records form a valuable index to crop possibilities. In general, in years where the seasonal rainfall (April, May, June and July) is above normal there has been a better than average crop (1915, 1916 (rusted), 1923, 1927, 1928, 1932, 1933 (rusted)). In the years which had higher than average seasonal rainfall, together with good fall moisture the previous year, there was also an exceptionally good crop (1915, 1928).

Total figures of precipitation, however, mean little in themselves; their value is determined by the moisture content (whether in light or heavy showers) by the amount of moisture that runs off at that time.

Storms are usually very local. Rain gauges located at the Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current, within a few hundred yards of each other indicate a wide variation in some showers. The fact that this variation in rainfall exists coupled with the value which can be obtained from rainfall figures justifies the use of a rain gauge on every farm, particularly following a storm and by many other factors. A rain of less than one-quarter inch is of little value unless it occurs during a cool rainy spell. The value of a heavy thunderstorm or cloudburst is determined, partly by the amount of moisture that runs off at that time.

Rain gauges located at the Dominion Experimental Station, Swift Current, within a few hundred yards of each other indicate a wide variation in some showers. The fact that this variation in rainfall exists coupled with the value which can be obtained from rainfall figures justifies the use of a rain gauge on every farm, particularly following a storm and by many other factors.

Men flocked to the spot in hundreds in the early Spring of 1883. Among these was Joseph Smith, then a workman on C.P.R. construction east of Calgary. The snow had hardly left the Bow Valley in the Spring of that year when he arrived at the scene of the "strike" with a prospector's outfit. Smith immediately set about building a hotel, and when sometime later the railroad builders reached the spot he was already doing a thriving business.

Silver City prospered for about three years. Then about 1886 the fact was finally realized that silver did not exist there in paying quantities. Almost overnight nearly every inhabitant moved away. Yet at the height of the boom the community is said to have had a population of 3,000. If this is accurate, Silver City must at that time have been one of the most important points between Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Until this month Silver City still had one inhabitant. He was Joseph Smith, whose faith in the silver mines of Castle Mountain had never waned. For 50 years he had lived in his little cabin at Castle Mountain station, making a scant living by mining small quantities of silver ore in the summer and trapping in the winter.

This old man was 94 years old, and advancing age made it impossible for him to carry on work any longer. He abandoned his cabin.

The old cabin and two tumbledown warehouses. Even the name has been lost sight of and the point is simply referred to as Castle Mountain station. In the literature of the national parks it is not mentioned.—Edmonton Journal.

There is a kind of melancholy fascination surrounding "ghost towns."

Generally such places are remnants of mining enterprises which have closed down, leaving the inhabitants of the town no alternative but to move on to new fields. Such towns are common in the western United States, notably in Nevada, and there are many in British Columbia. But it is not generally known that there are many such spots in Alberta.

Such a place is "Silver City," near Castle Mountain station in Banff National Park. Half a century ago it was a thriving town. To-day, although it is on one of the main routes of travel, thousands of tourists pass the place every year without suspecting that Silver City ever existed.

The history of Silver City goes back to the early '80s' when the Canadian Pacific Railway was building across the prairies. There was considerable activity in the Bow Valley above Calgary at that time, and late in 1882 or early in 1883 news leaked out that a rich silver strike had been made near Castle Mountain.

Market For Surplus

United States Takes All Turnips Canada Can Spare

The best export market for turnips grown in Canada is the United States. Of the total exports of turnips in fiscal year ended March 31, 1957, amounting to 2,625,767 bushels, 2,612,000 bushels went to the United States. In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1956, the exports to the U.S. were 2,740,000 bushels.

Only negligible quantities of turnips are supplied to the United States by other countries so that the U.S. market may be regarded as a dependable one for the Canadian exportable surplus, depending upon production and business in general. The Canada-United States Trade Agreement which became effective in 1956 reduced the duty on turnips from 26 cents per 100 lbs. to 12½ cents per 100 lbs.

A couple driving away on their honeymoon collided with a pig. Perhaps it was an accident but it may be that the grooms were eager to take advantage of this opportunity to show his bride how he can bring home the bacon, says the Toronto Star.

Like a girl adding a new "all round" wardrobe? Of course you would! Then take a tip and knit this fetching blouse. You'll love the lusciousness of a pointed yoke, so prettily set off by plain stockinette stitch, and the simple sleeves. Knit it of soft-colored string or yarn, in one of the new colors. Size 16-18 and 38-40; an illustration of the blouse and of all stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Alice Brooks Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., W., Winnipeg. There is no Alice Brooks pattern book published.

BRITAIN'S FORMER LABOR PREMIER DIES ABOARD SHIP

London.—J. Ramsay MacDonald, who rose from poverty in Scotland to become thrice prime minister of Great Britain, died suddenly aboard a cruise ship bound for South America, where he had hoped to seek rest and recuperate his health.

Dr. John MacKintosh, Mr. MacDonald's son-in-law, received news by wireless of the death of the United Kingdom's only Labor prime minister. He died aboard the liner Reina del Pacifico, apparently of a heart attack.

The body will be taken off the ship at Bermuda and returned to England.

The 71-year-old former prime minister, with his daughter Sheila, sailed for South America in search of what he called "the most elusive of all forms of happiness—rest."

He had planned to visit Peru and Chile and "to return when I have had enough of it."

The day after he departed, Earl Baldwin, his successor as prime minister, paid tribute to Mr. MacDonald in a public address, saying: "I never felt that Mr. MacDonald has had credit given him by the country due for services he rendered it in 1931 and in the years immediately succeeding."

It was in 1931 that Mr. MacDonald formed the National government and in doing so broke with many of his old associates in the Labor party. Prime Minister Chamberlain received news of his death shortly after addressing the lord mayor's banquet in historic Guildhall, the occasion at which a year ago Mr. MacDonald suffered a sudden collapse.

One of Mr. MacDonald's last comments of a political character was the assertion he could not believe "this war talk," a statement that bore out his year of ardent pacifism. He bitterly opposed both the South African and Great Wars, surrendering his leadership of Labor in the House of Commons in 1914 when the party decided to support the war.

Before sailing he said he felt fairly fit but that his eyes troubled him. "I don't see as well as I used to," he said, adding he intended to "think seriously" about writing a book on his turbulent political life.

Immigration Figures Up

In Addition Many Canadians Returned From United States

Ottawa.—Canadian immigration from all countries was 9,372 persons in the six months ended September 30, the immigration branch of the department of mines and resources reported. This compared with 7,005 immigrants in the corresponding period of 1936.

In addition 3,115 Canadians returned from United States during that same period this year compared to 2,975 in the corresponding six months of 1936.

Of the immigration total, 1,896 were from the British Isles, 1,262 English, 220 Irish, 382 Scotch and 32 Welsh. This compared with 1,410 a year ago. From the United States came 3,246 compared with 2,835 in the six months a year ago.

Attack On British Consul

Buenos Aires.—Disclosure was made of an attack by unknown assailants believed to be bandits on British Consul J. G. Baillie and his wife as they returned to their suburban home from an Armistice anniversary ball. Three shots were fired at the British official's car forcing him to stop, but without injury.

Testing Powerful Motor

London.—The world's most powerful aero-motor of its type is being tested here for use in new 40-ton flying boats on the North Atlantic air service. It is capable of developing 3,376 horsepower and is of the 14-cylinder radial engine type.

Protest Against Milk Price

Toronto.—Estimating housewives of Toronto, 600 strong, decided at a Labor Temple meeting here to reduce consumption of milk to the barest necessity until Toronto dairies bring the price down to 10 cents a quart.

Retreat From Shanghai

Chinese Troops Take Up New Position To Protect Nanking

Shanghai.—Shanghai fell into Japanese hands with the retreat of General Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese troops who had held out 88 days against a concerted Japanese army, navy and air force.

The city was asleep and unaware of its fate when, shortly after midnight, Chinese forces began an orderly, quiet retreat toward their "winter line" protecting Nanking, the capital.

Japanese, apparently, did not learn of the retreat until 8 a.m.

The withdrawal cut off the metropolis from the rest of the nation and bottled up 3,000,000 Chinese residents, 1,000,000 refugees and many thousands of foreigners.

Railroads and highways in all directions were cut or blocked by Japanese, leaving only a few foreign and Japanese vessels as the sole connection with the outside world.

Foreign communities breathed more easily, as if a long siege suddenly had been lifted. The plight of Chinese inhabitants and war refugees was considered tragic, as they have no means of escape and must reconcile themselves to a long period of isolation surrounded by Japanese troops.

Grasshopper Invasion

The 1938 Plague Will Not Be As Heavy In Southern Manitoba As Expected

Winnipeg.—The 1938 grasshopper invasion southern Manitoba will be heavier than in 1937 but not as serious as anticipated two months ago, Dr. R. D. Bird of the Dominion entomological laboratory at Brandon, said in a report to the Manitoba committee for grasshopper prevention.

Heavy flights to southwestern Manitoba last summer led authorities to believe the grasshopper egg deposits would bring serious results next year. However, a survey by the entomological department revealed the egg layer was below the expected mark.

The insect infestation will be concentrated in the southwestern portion of the province, Dr. Bird predicted. A small area of severe infestation is likely in the sandy land along the Souris river.

Cable From Belgium

Bourgmester Of Mons Addresses Message To Canadian People

Ottawa.—Prime Minister Mackenzie King received and acknowledged on behalf of the nation a cable from the bourgmester of Mons, Belgium, recalling the liberation 19 years ago of the city, just before the signing of the armistice that ended the Great War.

The bourgmester's message read: "Municipality and citizens of Mons addressed to Canadian government the expression of their grateful remembrance on the occasion of the anniversary of Mons' liberation by glorious Canadian troops."

Priced At Half Million

Book By Lawrence Of Arabia Exhibited In Boston

New York.—An aerial police escort guarded a thin leather-bound book priced at $500,000 on a flight to Boston, where it was exhibited at a book fair.

The volume was one of 12 copies of "The Mint" by Col. T. E. Lawrence, known as "Lawrence of Arabia," who set the price and stipulated the work should not be published generally until 1960. No copy has been sold.

Miner Killed In B.C.

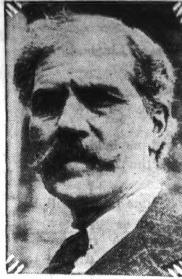

Fell 350 Feet From Scaffold To Bottom Of Shaft

Cranbrook, B.C.—Plunged from a scaffold of cross planks in an old mine at Moyie, Robert Mahon was killed.

Working 60 feet below the surface, Mahon plunged to his death when a plank broke, falling 350 feet to the bottom of the old shaft at the St. Eugene extension mining project at Moyie.

Mahon came here last spring from Cobalt, Ont.

DIES ON CRUISE SHIP

Ramsay MacDonald who became the United Kingdom's first Labor prime minister in January, 1924, lasting until November of that year. He again became premier in 1929. In 1931 he formed the first national government, which he headed until 1935.

Plans New Broadcasts

B.B.C. Will Combat Propaganda Programs Of Other Powers

London.—The Near East, South Africa and South America will receive first attention in the foreign language radio programs planned by Great Britain to overcome propaganda broadcasts by other powers, which have been leading the world.

British short wave programs, which probably will be sent out from the station at Duxbury, will use Arabic for the Near East, Afrikaans (a kind of Dutch) for South Africa, and Spanish for South America.

Postmaster-General G. L. Tryon announced in the House of Commons cost of the new service will be paid by the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Answering a question from Lieut.-Commander Reginald Fletcher, Labor, Major Tryon said a probable division of this will be that division of proceeds from the radio tax, part of which goes to B.B.C., will go to the corporation and vice versa.

Official announcement of details of the new service will be made soon.

Plans For Winter Flying

Montreal.—Capt. "Wop" May, Canadian wartime flyer, left Montreal in a new plane constructed to meet winter conditions. It was flown to Edmonton to transport supplies to the base of an expedition for Sir Hubert Wilkins to search for six Russian air men lost in August on a transpolar flight.

Wedding Date Postponed

Cairo.—The wedding of King Farouk of Egypt and Farida, his 17-year-old daughter of an Egyptian court Judge was postponed from Jan. 6 to Jan. 20. Farouk, who is 18, became engaged to Farida shortly after he was invested as king on his birthday last July.

Hockey Club Meeting.

On Friday last a reorganisation meeting of Stony Plain Senior Hockey Club was held. Mr Philip Enders, as secretary, opened the meeting. Mr Ph. P. Miller was elected President; Mr J H Miller as Vice-President; Mr Edw Enders, Secretary.

Throughout the whole meeting it was merely a discussion of ways in order to raise money enough to finance the club this season. It is understood that the club will need uniforms and a set of goal pads.

A finance committee of three was chosen, these being Messrs W E H Lewis, J W C Miller, F N Miller.

Owing to the fact that the hockey season was drawing near, it was decided that the club members start training at once, under Coach Ph Enders.

A fast brand of hockey is expected this season, and will be produced if the hockey fans of Stony Plain show any co-operation at all. So, remember "It Pays to Be A Sport!"—WJG.

Spruce Grove News.

The sale is reported of the two lots on Raiford ave. just east of the Schwabt Block. The Liquor Commissioner is said to be planning to establish a branch in the new building when erected.

A whist drive and dance was held Friday evening in the S.G.H. schoolhouse, with the dance music supplied by the Baron Boys. The winners were: Ladies, Mrs Beaupre; Mr Stitt secured the prize for gents.

Mr Joseph Weismontel left this week for Edson, to reside.

Spruce Grove was well represented at the big Social Credit doings up at Stony on Saturday.

In Remembrance.

In loving memory of Mrs Marie Swanek, who passed away Nov. 14, 1932.

Peacefully sleeping; resting at last.

The world's weary troubles and trials are past.

In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,

Till God called her home, to suffer no more.

Ever remembered by her niece Irene, and her sister Florence, at Westlock.

AN ACKNOWLEDGMENT !

The Company's elevators continue to receive a gratifying measure of patronage, not only from shareholders, but also from thousands of other farmer customers. It is such support which in the past has provided the basis for the success of the Company, and which it must be the continued effort of the Company to merit.

In these words, in the last annual report, the Directors of United Grain Growers Limited acknowledged the loyal support of the Company's patrons.

ANNOUNCING A NEW FORD DEALER

BARON MOTORS,
Stony Plain, Alberta.

The Ford Motor Company takes pleasure in announcing this new dealership. The appointment is in keeping with its established policy of providing the highest type of representation in each community.

This new Ford dealer is equipped to render competent service on cars and trucks at low cost. Precision equipment has been installed and all mechanics are thoroughly trained. Only Genuine Ford Parts are used and labour on all ordinary maintenance operations is billed at a standard flat rate.

We invite you to visit this new Ford dealer for service, and also to see the display of Ford V-8 cars. Distinguished this year by two engine sizes, 60 horsepower and 85 horsepower, the 1937 Ford V-8 is creating new standards in motoring economy. New beauty has been combined with the outstanding comfort, safety and performance that have put the Ford in a class by itself. Today's Ford brings you every modern feature, plus the assurance of satisfactory service and long life.

"Facts About Grain."

The following items are supplied by the Grain and Milling Advertising Service of Winnipeg:

Today at the Board of Trade offices in London, England, are kept the standards of the measurements of quantity used throughout the British Commonwealth.

There, for example, is housed the original yardstick which sets the standard of measurement of length.

Certainty of measurement is most necessary for the transaction of business.

In olden times the vessels or instruments fixing the volume or length or weight were considered sacred objects and were kept in the temples by the priesthood.

Measurement of quality or grade is a comparatively modern development.

Modern agricultural marketing is considered efficient just insofar as it measures and maintains quality, whether the product be bacon from Denmark, eggs from the Irish Free State or apples from the Okanagan.

Any standard measurement, whether of quantity or quality, if it is to be effective and useful, should be accurate, stable and uniform.

No country has shown such advancement in measurement of quality as Canada has in connection with her grain.

Standards offer a double protection. They protect the farmer-seller and the consumer-purchaser.

The standards of quality or grades of Western grain are determined either by the Board of Grain Commissioners or under their control and supervision.

Grow Your Own Seed

A new pamphlet has been issued by the "Crop Testing Plan" entitled "A Seed Field on the Farm".

It shows an easy way by which any farmer can grow his own seed.
